Administrative history / Biographical sketch

Note

The Canadian Labour Congress (CLC) is a national trade union centre, the central labour body in English Canada to which most Canadian labour unions are affiliated. It was founded on April 23, 1956 through the merger of the Trades and Labour Congress of Canada and the Canadian Congress of Labour.

Scope and content

These records offer information relevant to the Women's March Against Poverty in June 1996, and the World March of Women in 2000. Material in this collection dates from October 1995 through to 2000. The papers were compiled by the head office of the Canadian Labour Congress, as well as local offices throughout the region. The records reflect all organizing strategies which took place prior to the marches, as well as the organization of the marches, and organization of post-march activities and events. Records include print and non-print items, including textual records, photographs, and posters.

Immediate source of acquisition:

The March Against Poverty records were collected by the head office of the Canadian Labour Congress from 1995 until 1997, and donated to the Archives and Special Collections in 1998 as part of the Canadian Women's Movement Archives. The World March of Women 2000 records were donated to the Archives and Special Collections in 2003. Prior to this, they were held by the Canadian Women's March Committee. The Canadian Labour Congress worked on both the March Against Poverty and the World March of Women 2000, as a participating organization on the Canadian Women March Committee.
